Note to Parents and Teachers

The Practice Workbook of Spelling, Grade 4, is a carefully constructed and fully tested part of the language arts program. The teaching techniques are based on classroom experience, suggestions from many teachers, and the advice and counsel of educators prominent in the field. Although a thoroughly tested program for handling each lesson of a unit is here suggested, it may well be modified to meet the needs of individual children.

A. (First Day) Meeting New Words

Ask the child to look at the picture carefully. Read the story with him. Pronounce the words in the New List (including the review words), letting the child pronounce them after you. Help the child find the New List words in the story. Always guide the child through any directions.

B. (Second Day) Using My Words

Concentrate on word meanings. See that the child understands all of the directions. Have him follow each exercise through and then check his work. Encourage good form.

C. (Third Day) My Trial Test

Have the child take the trial test. Dictate very distinctly, using the word in a short sentence if it will help to identify the word. Check for errors, if any. Have the child write the misspelled words correctly in the Trouble Kit.

D. (Fourth Day) Learning About Words

This lesson provides for concentration on special difficulties and for a broader understanding of the meaning and use of the words. Emphasis should be put on sureness by having every word checked after it is written. Give special help with words in the Trouble Kit.

E. (Fifth Day) What Have I Learned?

Give the final test for the unit. As always, dictate the words very carefully. Supervise the writing and assist in checking the words and recording the scores. See that any misspelled word is recorded.

The word list in this workbook provides one of the most thoroughly tested lists now available and suited to this grade level.

Study Plan

Lesson A (First Day)

1. Look at the picture. Read the story. Say each word in the list of New Words To Write after someone reads it to you.
2. Find each New Word in the story. Say each word as you find it.
3. Study each New Word and Review Word. Use the Study Steps below as you study each word.
Then write the word on the line.

Study Steps

1. Look at the word and say it.

2. Look at the letters in the word.

3. Close your eyes. Imagine you are writing the letters. Then say the letters to yourself.

4. Open your eyes. Look at the word. See whether you said the letters right.

5. Write the word on paper from memory. Check your written word to see whether it is right.

6. If your written word is wrong, study the word again. Begin with Step 1.

Lesson B (Second Day)

1. Look at the picture. Read the story again.
2. Look again at the list of New Words To Write. Be sure you know what each New Word means.
3. Read the exercise. Write the words that belong in the sentences or that tell the meaning.

Lesson C (Third Day)

1. Take the Trial Test on the New Words and Review Words.
2. Check your list of words. Write in your Trouble Kit any word you have wrong. Draw a line under the part you missed. Then study the word until you have mastered it.
3. You may find words not in the list which you want to learn to spell. Put them under My Own Hard Words. Study these words.

Lesson D (Fourth Day)

1. Study each New Word again.
2. Do whatever your book tells you to do.

Lesson E (Fifth Day)

1. Take the Final Test on the New Words and Review Words.
2. Check your list of words. Put down your score on the Score Chart.
3. Turn to the page for your Word Giants. Write in your Word Giant list any word you had wrong on the Final Test. Be sure to master every word in your Word Giants.

1 Keeping Safe on the Streets

A. Meeting New Words

1. Look at the picture. Read the story.

Our class wanted to know more about keeping safe on the streets. Miss Brown asked the police department to send a man to talk to us and teach us safety laws. He told us how to cross a street safely. He told us that a safety law is worth remembering. We know, besides, it is our duty to obey every law. It does not excuse us to say we forgot.

Then we made these rules:

- Cross a street only at the corner.
 - Wait until the traffic light changes to green. Never cross the street on a red light.
 - Be sure each truck or other car stops moving before you cross.
 - Stand in the safety zone when waiting for a streetcar. Don't stand on the track.
 - If you are waiting for a bus, stand on the sidewalk.
- Say each word in New Words To Write.
 - Each New Word is underlined in the story.
 - Study each New Word.

A Wish That Came True

Look at the Study Plan on page 3. Follow the plan. Use your Study Steps.

A. Meeting New Words

Did you ever wish and wish hard until your wish came true? One of my biggest wishes came true last summer. My family went to camp for two weeks. We had a tent by a lake. We watched the sun rise over the water before we ate breakfast.

Mother cooked the bacon in a big iron pan over the fire. We all helped to wash and wipe dishes.

One day we decided to pack a lunch and take a long trip in the woods. We took a knife along to cut the cake.

We liked our canoe. We rode in it often. The lake was usually smooth so we were not afraid.

In the evening we sat around the fire. We loved to listen to an old fisherman tell stories. You could not guess what he would tell next. He always had an answer to every question, too.

Dear Aunt Mary,

Do you remember the squirrel that used to beg for nuts when you were here? He is still around. He likes to dig holes in the earth and hide the nuts. Sometimes he covers them more than an inch deep.

Our parrot doesn't like him. You should hear Polly scold when I give a nut to the squirrel.

This morning the squirrel was busy digging on the lawn. I watched him as he hid each nut I had given him.

Polly knew I was watching. She began to scream at me. I think she said,

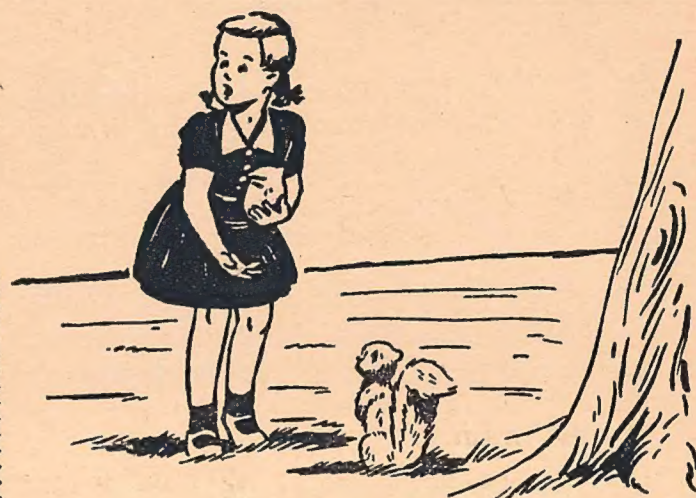

"Listen! Please hurry! I want a cracker!"

I tried to be quick. But when I brought the cracker, Polly was so mad she wanted to fight.

Your loving niece,
Betty

A. Meeting New Words

It is easy for a dog to get lost. He cannot tell his name or where he lives. Of course you do not want to lose your dog. How can you help him to keep from getting lost?

Your dog must have a collar. If you can put your finger easily between the collar and the neck, it's the right size. If not, he needs a bigger collar. The inside of the collar must not be rough.

The collar should tell the dog's name and where he lives. It should also have a tag that tells the dog's number. It will show that the dog's license fee has been paid. The tag will cost money. You will probably have to pay a fee each year.

Every dog must learn to wear a collar. He must wear it always, except when he's in the house.

A. Meeting New Words

Do you like to take trips on clear days in autumn? This is the time that Nature puts on her colorful dress. It is a grand show. Every bush and tree seems to have a perfect fit in a neat new suit or wrap.

Trees are very quiet but they are always busy. The leaves have worked all summer making food for the hungry tree.

The pretty colors of the leaves tell us the story that winter will soon be here. The work of the leaves is over, so the tree will let them loose from their branch. They will drop to the ground with a good-by to the tree.

The Caterpillar and the Moth

Look at the Study Plan on page 3. Follow the plan. Use your Study Steps.

A. Meeting New Words

Frank was pleased with himself the day he brought a big green caterpillar to school. He had wrapped the caterpillar in a sheet of paper. Frank laid the caterpillar on some leaves in a big glass jar. The caterpillar lay so quietly as it ate the leaves that we could scarcely tell it was still living.

Soon it began spinning a thread to make itself a cocoon. We watched how careful it was to fasten the cocoon to a twig. It wanted to be protected from harm. This was to be its house where it would sleep the whole winter.

In the spring it will eat a hole in the cocoon. A moth will crawl out. It will spread its wings to dry, then fly away.

We can hardly wait until the caterpillar has become a moth. We want to see what kind it will be.

Tuesday was a big day for us. The circus came to town.

We were ready early. We hurried down to find a good place to stand. We found everybody else there, too. All the parents came with their children.

We waited and waited. All at once we heard music coming nearer. The parade was on its way. We saw the band march by.

Next came a big elephant swinging its trunk. Then came another elephant and a clown leading a donkey.

Next came cages of wild animals. As they passed us, one lion gave a loud roar. There seemed to be noise everywhere.

Then came ladies in pretty red dresses riding on white horses. A fat clown was driving three donkeys. The donkey in the center was white.

A. Meeting New Words

I am a sailor. I lived long, long ago.

I said that the earth was round. I said I could reach the Indies by sailing west instead of east. People told me I was wrong about the shape of the earth. They thought it was flat. I would fall off the edge of the earth if I went west, they said.

The queen of Spain gave me the chance to prove I was right. She gave me three ships. Each was a sailing vessel.

My ship led the way. Soon we were out of sight of land. We went on and on for many a month. The crew became more and more afraid. But there wasn't any real danger.

We didn't find the Indies, but we found a new part of the world.

Can you guess who I am? Yes, I am Christopher Columbus.

9 Learning About Bees

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

I used to be afraid of bees before I learned about them this summer.

Uncle Bill had a number of beehives. Each hive stood on a little bench. Every morning he worked awhile among the bees. He talked to me while he worked.

There are three kinds of bees in a hive. There are drones and a queen. The others are called workers.

The queen works hard. She has to remain in the hive, for she is busy laying eggs. The workers do all the labor. They gather the honey and build the cells that make the comb. They bring food to the baby bees. Often a worker has to act as a nurse to the babies.

Do you like honey for your supper as well as I do? It brings a smell of clover to me.

A. Meeting New Words

Coffee grows in an orchard. It is the fruit of the coffee tree. This tree grows best in a warm country high above the sea. It needs dry, fresh air and rich soil.

Coffee begins as a white flower which has a very sweet smell. Later, the flower turns into a green berry which is about the size of a cherry. Two smooth flat seeds grow together in each berry.

The green coffee beans are dried in the hot sun. Then they are carried to our country in big ships. They are roasted afterward in a great oven.

Some coffee is ground before it is packed. Some coffee is left in beans. These beans have to be ground by the grocer before our mothers can use them to make coffee for breakfast.

A. Meeting New Words

A Magic Man came to our school. He did many funny tricks.

Tom climbed to the stage to examine a pine box. There was nothing in it. The man put a cloth over the box, then removed the cloth. He opened the box and pulled out a live rabbit. His helper was busy running to him and leaving things.

The Magic Man said his money was gone. "Did you take it?" he said to Tom. Now Tom looked sad. He grew frightened, but he wouldn't cry. The man told Tom to put his hand over his heart and say, "I didn't take your money." When Tom had finished, the man caught him by the nose and the money dropped into a can.

The man never stopped talking. He worked so fast our eyes could not follow him. We were so excited that we were almost dancing.

A. Meeting New Words

October 31, 1958

Dear Nancy,

Our Halloween party was lots of fun. We invited the Third Grade to our party. School closed early. The other grades had parties, too.

We got a big pumpkin. We cleaned out the insides. We cut holes in the skin with a knife. We made the eyes, nose, and mouth. We put a candle inside. I took a match later and lighted the candle. The funny face made us all laugh.

Betty dressed as a witch and rode around on a broom. We played games. We drank cider and ate doughnuts.

I wished so much that you could have been here for the party.

Your loving cousin,
Jane

A. Meeting New Words

Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day. It comes every year late in November.

I wish I could have been at the first Thanksgiving dinner. It happened more than three hundred years ago.

The Pilgrims were living in a village of log houses. They were feeling very thankful to God for bringing them safely through the year. So they set aside one day when everyone should praise God and bless Him.

On that day of thanksgiving, the Pilgrims made a feast. Every man and boy went hunting or fishing. They killed the wild turkey and other birds and animals. Each woman and girl kept busy cooking food and serving the dinner.

Friendly Indians were invited to the feast. They wanted to help. One Indian chief brought a deer he had shot.

A. Meeting New Words

December 6, 1958

Dear Ted,

Jane and I went to the country with Daddy today. We took a bus to the edge of a field. Then we walked for a mile or more through the woods. Once Jane and I ran ahead.

Daddy called, "Wait a minute."

"A minute," said a voice far away.

We ran back quickly.

"Who's that speaking?" Jane asked.

"I can't see anybody," I said as I looked back over my shoulder.

Daddy laughed and said, "There's no one anywhere near us. That sound was an echo. The hill threw back my voice. Try it yourselves."

We shouted. Our own words came back. When we spoke softly or in a whisper, no echo came.

Jack

We received this letter Monday:

December 15, 1958

Dear Fourth Grade,

The fifth grade is giving a program at one o'clock on Friday afternoon. There will be Christmas stories, songs, and a poem or two. We have built a stage in our room, and we are writing our own play. We hope that you can come to our program.

Your friends,
The Fifth Grade

We wrote our answer and said we would be glad to come. Then we talked over our plans with our teacher.

We fixed a tree on a stand. Each pupil made either a chain of paper rings or a popcorn snowball. On Friday we took the tree to the fifth grade room. We all had a merry time.

Dear Fifth Grade,

We all think you have given a grand program. Thank you for inviting us. We can still taste that delicious cocoa.

We didn't know you had a poet in your class. We enjoyed our travel to other countries through the stories and songs.

We liked the play, too. We're glad the hero showed his courage. At last he saved the lost Christmas.

You must be proud of the writer of your play. We wonder who wrote it.

The star shining through the window on the stairs made a beautiful picture.

Please visit us some day.

Sally Ann wrote this letter after Christmas to her grandmother and grandfather.

December 26, 1958

Dear Grandmother and Grandfather,

Thank you for the new dress. That's a lovely shade of pink. It's the loveliest shade I've ever seen. It's like a ripe peach. I know the reason now why you measured how tall I am. The dress is a perfect fit.

Our stockings were all hanging over the fireplace in the parlor. A great horn of candy hung there, too.

In the heel of my stocking I found a sewing case. Each needle had thread in it. I can use the sewing case when Mother teaches me to sew.

Daddy gave me a sled. Tomorrow I'm going coasting. I hope it doesn't get too cold. I love to coast.

Your loving,
Sally Ann

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

May 17, 1958

Dear Jack,

Last Wednesday, after school, our class team played baseball with the Fifth Grade. Tom, a sixth grade boy, was our umpire. Bill is our pitcher. He is good at throwing curves. I had a new glove for the game.

About fifty boys and girls watched our game. No one scored until almost the end of the game. I was on first base. Ned was at bat with one strike and two balls. He hit the ball with a loud knock. Everyone held his breath. I ran to second, to third, and then home. Ned scored, too. He had to slide home. The crowd burst into a cheer when we beat the other team. Do you blame them?

Your cousin,
Bob

19 Rules for Health

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

Our school doctor has given us health rules that we ought to follow. The chief rules against which I check myself are:

1. Eat fresh fruits and vegetables.
2. Drink a glass of milk at each meal. Drink more glasses of milk if I can.
3. Sleep eleven hours every night. Lie down in the daytime if I'm tired.
4. Always breathe plenty of fresh air. Play outdoors except in bad weather. Keep the windows in my bedroom open.
5. Always have a towel of my own. Take a bath every day. Wash my hands before eating.
6. Wear shoes that are loose enough not to crowd my toes.
7. Show a little gain when I weigh myself each week.
8. Brush my teeth every day. Keep each tooth clean. See the dentist at least twice a year.

A. Meeting New Words

Sugar is an important food. We eat almost our weight in sugar each year. Most of our sugar comes from the juice of the sugar beet or sugar cane.

Have you ever seen a field of sugar cane? It is a tall grass which grows best in a warm, damp climate. The stalks grow twelve to fifteen feet tall, sometimes taller. They are often two inches thick.

A long sharp knife is used to cut the cane. The stalks must be free from the leaves before they are taken to the mill. The stalks are cut into short pieces. Then they are ready to be rolled between the heavy rollers of the mill. While the stalks are being squeezed through the mill, the juice pours from somewhere. It comes from the inside of the cane stalks. The sugar is made from this sweet juice.

21 The Snow House

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

January 30, 1958

Dear Uncle Fred,

Did you build snow houses when you were my age? Bill, Jane, and I spent most of Saturday building one.

Wind and snow had made a big drift. We each had a shovel. We cleared away the snow in a circle. We used a barrel for a door. Both ends were open. We built the whole house of snow.

It was quite cold outdoors. It was less than twenty above zero. But we had on warm clothes. Dr. Brown came by. He said not to stay out too long in the bitter cold or we might freeze our ears. By morning the snow house was frozen solid from top to bottom.

Your loving nephew,
Dick

We have made a bulletin board for our classroom. We put a notice on it when something is found. Other notices tell other things we should know. Here are a few of the notices:

Found!

Here are some things found lately: a blue handkerchief, a hammer with a broken handle, a brown overcoat, and a box of paints and a brush. The things are in the cupboard in the office. Don't delay. Please claim them at once. Try not to be careless next time.

Notice!

Be sure to see the stamp collection that Jack has begun.

23 Getting Maple Sirup

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

Mother, Sally, and I visited Grandfather at his log cabin. He was making maple sirup. He wanted company, since he was all alone.

The trees were bare. Snow was on the ground, but there was a smell of spring. Grandfather took us around to explain how he got the sap. He showed us the drill he used to do the cutting of the holes in the trees.

While he was telling us about the sap dripping into the gallon pail, he found a broken spout. The pail was fastened to the spout with a small wire. As he fixed the spout, he let us tip the pail and pour some juice into a cup. I thought I never had drunk anything so good.

It was lots of fun to watch the sap cook in the large pans. We had a grand time on our visit.

Lucy had fun teaching Carlo tricks. He learned to scare the crows out of the corn. Lucy would wave her arms and say, "Crows, Carlo." And off Carlo would tear after the crows.

When an airplane came, Lucy and Carlo tore out of the house. She pointed at the sky. Off shot Carlo. He was ready to do whatever Lucy wanted him to do. He thought Lucy wanted him to scare away the airplane.

Lucy saw him circle the pond and go out of sight. She really didn't mean to fool him or expect him to obey. She almost cried.

After a long time Lucy saw something moving. The spot grew larger. It was the figure of a dog. He came nearer, hardly crawling. His fur was torn. His feet were sore with burs and a thorn. His tongue hung like a loose ribbon. He could only lie down.

A. Meeting New Words

March 9, 1958

Dear Grandmother,

Yesterday Daddy took Jane and me to the city. I bought all the railroad tickets. Jane tied her ticket in her handkerchief.

The train we took goes so fast that it almost flies across the country.

In the forenoon we went to visit the plant of a daily newspaper. It was fun to watch the men print the news.

We had our lunch at twelve o'clock at a hotel. On the way to the hotel, a fire engine passed us. The fire was in an alley between two buildings.

We spent the afternoon at the art museum. Jane liked a Persian carpet best, but I liked a tiny silver horse.

Your grandson,
Tom

26 A Rainy Saturday

★ Follow the Study Plan for each day. ★

A. Meeting New Words

It was raining so hard Saturday that I could not go out. But I did not mind.

My mother was in the kitchen making a cake. Since I did not like being idle, I went to help her. She wanted to measure everything herself. But she let me mix the butter and sugar. I took the mixing bowl on my knee and stirred and stirred and stirred. I kept on until the cake was well mixed.

Mother was making grape jelly, too. She had two baskets of purple grapes. She gave a pint jar to me.

Of course there was a pile of dirty dishes. I washed and wiped the dishes, and I was cleaning up when Mother stopped to frost the cake.

"What a helpful daughter!" she said as she gave me the frosting spoon to lick. What luck for me!

A. Meeting New Words

This morning I went to the market to do some shopping for Mother. She had already ordered the chicken from the butcher, as she wanted to charge it. She gave me cash to pay for my order.

I made this list for myself so that I wouldn't forget anything:

1. A dozen eggs
2. A quart of milk
3. A pound of butter
4. A half-pound can of tea
5. A package of American cheese
6. A bunch of carrots
7. A box of safety matches

The clerk gave me a dollar, a quarter, and a nickel in change. I put the money in my pocket and hurried home.

A. Meeting New Words

An old, old Greek story tells about a man and his son who lived on an island. The man was a builder. His brain was always making new plans. The king didn't want to lose such a clever man. So the island really was a prison.

The king could guard the land and the sea, but not the air. One day the man had an idea. He covered a frame of wood with cloth and stuck on feathers with wax. He made smaller wings for his son. The man knew that nobody had ever tried to fly before.

The father said, "Watch the sun. If the wax on your wings melts, you will fall. You cannot float. You will sink."

But the boy flew near the sun. A feather shower began. With a sudden drop, he fell to his death.

The father reached another land safely, but he never flew again.

A. Meeting New Words

I want to tell you about my dream. As I went to sleep, I had been thinking about arithmetic. I was thinking how funny it would be if we always spelled out a number instead of using a figure.

Then I dreamed that I was working on a test with thirty examples like these:

1. Twenty and what equal sixty?
2. Thirty and forty equal what?

Later I had to divide. I had tried hard to master every division fact. But, to tell the truth, I was upset by the division examples. They seemed to cause more trouble than the others. I was sure I could divide thirteen by three and not have a remainder.

I was ready to quit. But I didn't have to finish the test anyway. Fortunately I woke up just in time.

Things To Remember

1. There are twenty-six letters in the alphabet. Five of these are always vowels. The five vowels are a, e, i, o, and u.

All the letters that are not vowels are consonants.

The letters w and y are usually consonants. But sometimes these two letters are used as vowels. In such words as few and how the w is a vowel. In such words as try and funny the y takes the place of a vowel i and is therefore a vowel.

2. Each vowel has several different sounds. A vowel that says its own name is called a long vowel. See how each long vowel is marked:

āte mē kīte bōth ūse

Say the vowel in each of these words. Each of these vowels is a short vowel. See how the short vowel is marked:

ăt mĕt sĭt hŏt cŭp

3. A short form of a word is an abbreviation. An abbreviation must have a period after it. Some common abbreviations are:

Mr. Mrs. Dr.

4. A short way of writing two or more words is called a contraction. An apostrophe is used in a contraction to show where one or more letters have been left out. Some common contractions are:

isn't can't o'clock I'm

Using the Dictionary

You will need to use the dictionary often as you go on in your work in school.

Here are some points about the dictionary which may help you to use it easily.

1. The dictionary can be divided into quarters. You will have these letters in the four parts:

1. a b c d

3. m n o p q r

2. e f g h i j k l

4. s t u v w x y z

2. At the top of each dictionary page you should find two words. These words are called guide words. The word at the left names the first word on the page. The word at the right names the last word.

3. Say: fun, funny, funnier. You can say fun with just one voice sound. But funny takes two voice sounds and funnier takes three.

Any part of a word that you can say with just one sound is call a syllable.

A dictionary divides each word into syllables in order to help you to pronounce the word.

In each word of more than one syllable you will find a mark like this: '. This is an accent mark. It tells which syllable should be said the hardest. See: fun, fun'ny, fun'ni-er. A word which has only one syllable does not need an accent mark. Some words have more than one accent mark.
